

In Memoriam: Workers Lost on the Job

Unifor Local 111 remembers and honours those who died at work

On this International Day of Mourning, we pause to remember and honor all workers who have lost their lives, been injured, or suffered illness due to workplace incidents.

Today, we hold in our thoughts our fallen colleague, Charanjit Parhar (59132), whose loss reminds us of the real and human cost behind every safety failure. Their memory strengthens our collective responsibility to ensure that every worker returns home safely at the end of each shift.

We stand together in solidarity with families, friends, and coworkers affected by workplace tragedies. Let this day not only be one of remembrance, but also a renewed commitment to vigilance, accountability, and safer working conditions for all.
